COUNT THE COST

Proverbs 24:27, "Prepare your work outside; get everything ready for yourself in the field, and after that build your house."

The wise man is stressing the importance of being prepared. We need to understand what we are getting ourselves into before we begin so we are not surprised by something unexpected. You may have heard a teacher or a coach mention the five P's: Prior Planning Prevents Poor Performance. This is what the writer is saying in the verse. Success is not an accident, it is the culmination of much preparation and hard work.

Jesus talked about counting the cost before beginning a project in Luke 14:28-30. In similar fashion, a professional contractor will sit down before the work begins, plan out the entire project, and come up with a budget for the job. Then he will discuss the details with his customer and once they have agreed to the terms, that is when he starts to build. If he were to jump right into building the house without any planning, he might realize halfway through that it is going to cost much more than what he told his customer and then not be able to finish the job. How would that reflect on his ability as a professional? Do you think anyone else would want to hire him to build their house? Would you?

As Christians, we have made a commitment to Jesus to follow His teachings, but have we truly prepared ourselves to obey Him. Is our commitment just words that we speak or is it built upon the solid foundation that will stand firm even when the storms of life blow? Count the cost, prepare your-self to serve God, and then work with all your might.

Greg Surles
